TIME CHANGE

Since new Boston Public Schools start times were announced last week, thousands of parents have signed a petition asking to delay the changes, saying an earlier school day will disrupt their lives. 4-5

WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT, REPORTER

After more than a year of contemplating changing school start times, the Boston Public School system decided last week to go ahead and set a new schedule. Though the new start times are later for many high schoolers, the district pushed elementary schools earlier — to start at 7:15 a.m., which many parents are saying doesn't work for their current lives. Read about what parents are doing in response inside and at metroboston.us.

FIREFIGHTERS WRESTLE TO CONTROL WILDFIRE

A massive California wildfire that has already destroyed nearly 700 homes in its path of destruction crept closer to the upscale hillside community of Montecito despite calmer winds that slowed its progress. The Thomas Fire, which broke out on Dec. 4 near the community of Ojai, has since spread 27 miles to become the fifth-largest blaze in state history. It has blackened more than 366 square miles in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. Officials said Santa Ana winds on Tuesday sapped its forward momentum and allowed crews to prevent further damage to homes. "It's doing what we want it to do. The fire is staying away from the homes," said Capt. Steve Concialdi of the California Department of Forestry of Fire Protection.

LEGAL SHOWDOWN WITH FCC ON NET NEUTRALITY

Net neutrality advocates said they are gearing up for a legal fight after abandoning attempts to convince the U.S. Federal Communications Commission to keep 2015 rules aimed at maintaining an open internet. The FCC is expected to vote on Dec. 14 to scrap the landmark so-called net neutrality rules championed by former President Barack Obama, given FCC Chairman Ajit Pai and two Republican commissioners support the repeal. Advocates for the rules doubt the U.S. Congress will help prevent a repeal, leaving litigation as a last resort. Industry and public interest groups are considering several strategies to protect the rules banning internet service providers (ISPs) from blocking or "throttling" to slow service for certain content, including arguing that the decision is arbitrary and pushing back on the FCC's classification of ISPs.

EL FARO IGNORED STORM REPORTS

The freighter El Faro sank in 2015, killing all 33 people aboard, after the captain ignored reports the ship was heading directly into a strengthening hurricane, a U.S. safety board concluded on Tuesday. According to the preliminary findings of a National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) investigation into the sinking, Captain Michael Davidson relied on outdated weather information as he headed into the storm, an NTSB meeting was told. The NTSB panel is reviewing more than 70 findings and 50-plus recommendations stemming from the sinking of the 790-foot freighter off the Bahamas on Oct. 1, 2015, during Hurricane Joaquin. The El Faro disappeared two days after leaving Jacksonville, Florida, loaded with containers and vehicles bound for Puerto Rico.

PEPSICO MAKES BIG PRE-ORDER OF TESLA TRUCKS

PepsiCo Inc. has reserved 100 of Tesla Inc.'s new electric Semi trucks, the largest known order of the big rig, as the maker of Mountain Dew soda and Doritos chips seeks to reduce fuel costs and fleet emissions, a company executive said on Tuesday. Tesla has been trying to convince the trucking community that it can build an affordable electric big rig with the range and cargo capacity to compete with relatively low-cost, time-tested diesel trucks. Several transportation firms are holding off on the Tesla for now, citing uncertainty over the time it takes to recharge compared to a diesel fill-up, range, and payload capabilities and how the market for electric commercial vehicles will develop. About 260,000 heavy-duty Class-8 trucks are produced in North America annually, according to FTR, an industry economics research firm.

Parents upset with changes to Boston Public Schools start times create petition

Some say the district's new schedule doesn't address each school's needs.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

The announcement of new school start times surely had some Boston high schoolers excited about sleeping in, but the news didn't elicit a positive reaction from many parents of elementary and middle school kids.

"I was very shocked when I heard. I can't even explain how shocked," said Jane Miller, a Roslindale mom of three who also works as a teacher outside of the Boston Public School system. Miller's children are 10, 8 and 5 years old.

BPS spent 18 months considering the start-times change, an effort that included a district-wide survey, to which 7,500 families and 2,200 teachers responded, community meetings and website information.

When BPS announced the new times at the end of last week, Miller found out that her kids' school schedule changed from a 9:30 start time and 4:10 dismissal time to a 7:15 start and 1:55 dismissal — an option she said was never really part of the community discussions.

When it came to actually figuring out what the new times would be, BPS relied on computers, using an algorithm to shift things around, with a focus on transportation spending (new start times affect bus schedules and thus BPS's entire transportation system). To Miller, that method didn't factor in every school's needs.

"Every school community will need something different. They don't need to start at the same time, but it should be equitable," she said. "An algorithm can't tell you what works for your community."

If a new bell time doesn't work for some families, BPS is offering to write letters for parents' and guardians' employers explaining the new schedules may mean that a parent's work hours should change.

Still, the only option for some families, BPS noted, may be to change schools. Miller said that isn't realistic for many, not only because of where they live and work but because of how specific schools focus on the details of kids' "social and emotional disabilities."

"They get kids from all over the city," Miller said. "[These families] don't have the option to change schools — this is where those services are provided."

Plus, many families have said a 1:55 dismissal will cause after-school child care costs to skyrocket.

Spurred by her frustrations, Miller started a Change.org petition asking the district to delay the changes. The new start times are set to go into effect for the 2018-19 school year, but nine months is not enough time for families to reschedule their lives, she said.

As of Tuesday, more than 6,000 people had signed the petition. Miller and other parents also started a Facebook group, Start Smart BPS, and had a meeting Tuesday night that families from 17 schools attended.

"It's important that all the Boston Public Schools start working together," Miller said. "The goal is not to take away a preferable start time for one school; the goal is to get equitable start times for each school community."

The group has also raised its concerns with the Boston City Council, which on Monday ordered a hearing to address the changes, and also plans to organize a presence at the School Committee meeting Wednesday night.

"We all chose our schools based on a number of reasons, and one of those reasons is the start time," Miller said. "Being a parent with work, kids, extra activities — it's such a fine balance. ... To just have someone else decide what works best for you, it really has an impact on a lot of families."

You can now use your Mass. license photo for 14 years

With a photo that is valid for a longer period of time, you can renew online more often, rather than at the RMV.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

If you hate going to the RMV, here's some good news: Massachusetts license photos can now be used for more than a decade, meaning you can renew your license online instead of in-person more often.

The Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) announced this week that license photos can now be used for 14 years, an increase from the previously allotted nine-year limit.

Customers are also eligible to renew their licenses or ID cards online for two renewal periods in a row. You will still need to visit an RMV location in person to renew your license or ID card every third renewal period, which is only once every 15 years.

That change will result in about 30,000 more renewals processed online each month, rather than in-person visits.

These changes are part of an effort on the RMV's behalf to reduce visits to registry locations. That way, officials say, customers who do need to physically be at the RMV for other reasons will have a more efficient experience.

"The Registry is pleased to offer these helpful enhancements to service options that are currently available to our customers," said Registrar of Motor Vehicles Erin Deveney in a statement. "We encourage customers to conveniently renew their driver's license or MA ID card online if they are eligible to do so, saving a trip to a service center and perhaps avoiding holiday traffic too."

In order to renew your license online, your card's photo must be less than 14 years old and have been taken after your 21st birthday. To check your status and renew online, head to mass.gov/how-to/renew-your-drivers-license.

Other changes are coming to Massachusetts licenses for every resident, though. Beginning March 26, 2018, the RMV is changing how customers get and renew their licenses and ID cards in order to issue cards that are REAL ID compliant.

The REAL ID Act is a federal mandate approved by Congress in 2005 as a response to the Sept. 11 attacks in 2001, to ensure additional security for identification cards. Massachusetts residents won't need a REAL ID until October 2020 and even then, only if they use their license while flying. Passports can still be used in lieu of a REAL ID for travel.

ALABAMA ELECTION

Prayer, principal guide women voters in Roy Moore's Alabama hometown

In a Senate race rocked by allegations of sexual misconduct against Republican candidate Roy Moore, women in his hometown said they were sticking by the embattled nominee while others said prayer would guide their votes.

Carroll Norman, a retired middle-school teacher in Gadsden, said she did not know if she would vote for a Democrat for the first time in her life or write in another name on her ballot.

"I'll have to pray about it and make a decision in the morning," the 64-year-old Republican said.

Reuters spoke to more than a dozen women in the religious, working-class city of about 36,000 people an hour from Birmingham. Gadsden landed in an unwelcome spotlight after multiple women came forward last month to accuse Moore of pursuing them when they were teenagers and he was a local prosecutor in his 30s.

One accuser said he tried to initiate sexual contact with her when she was 14. Moore denounced the allegations as political attacks and refused to heed national Republicans' calls to leave the race. Reuters has not independently confirmed any of the accusations.

But at the Gadsden Mall, Republican Debbie Handy said she was voting for "the judge," as many locals refer to Moore, a former Alabama Supreme Court chief justice.

"I've known him a long time and he'd never have anything to do with those women," Handy, 40, said. "He's a man of integrity. He's a strong Christian."

Handy said she also liked Moore because he supports Trump, who last year won 73 percent of the presidential vote in Etowah County, where Gadsden is the county seat.

"Trump and Moore will bring America back to what it should be," she said. REUTERS

New report: Massachusetts is the healthiest state in the country

New health rankings put Massachusetts in the top spot this year for the first time ever.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
@kristindakota
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

Massachusetts is the healthiest state in the country, according to a report published Tuesday by the United Health Foundation.

The Bay State dethroned Hawaii, which held the top spot for the past five years, in the foundation's 28th annual report.

Called "America's Health Rankings," the report assessed the nation's health state-by-state, looking at factors like health policies, environment and behaviors. It's a joint effort by the United Health Foundation and the American Public Health Association.

2.7%

MASSACHUSETTS HAS THE LOWEST PERCENTAGE OF THE POPULATION UNINSURED, AT JUST 2.7 PERCENT.

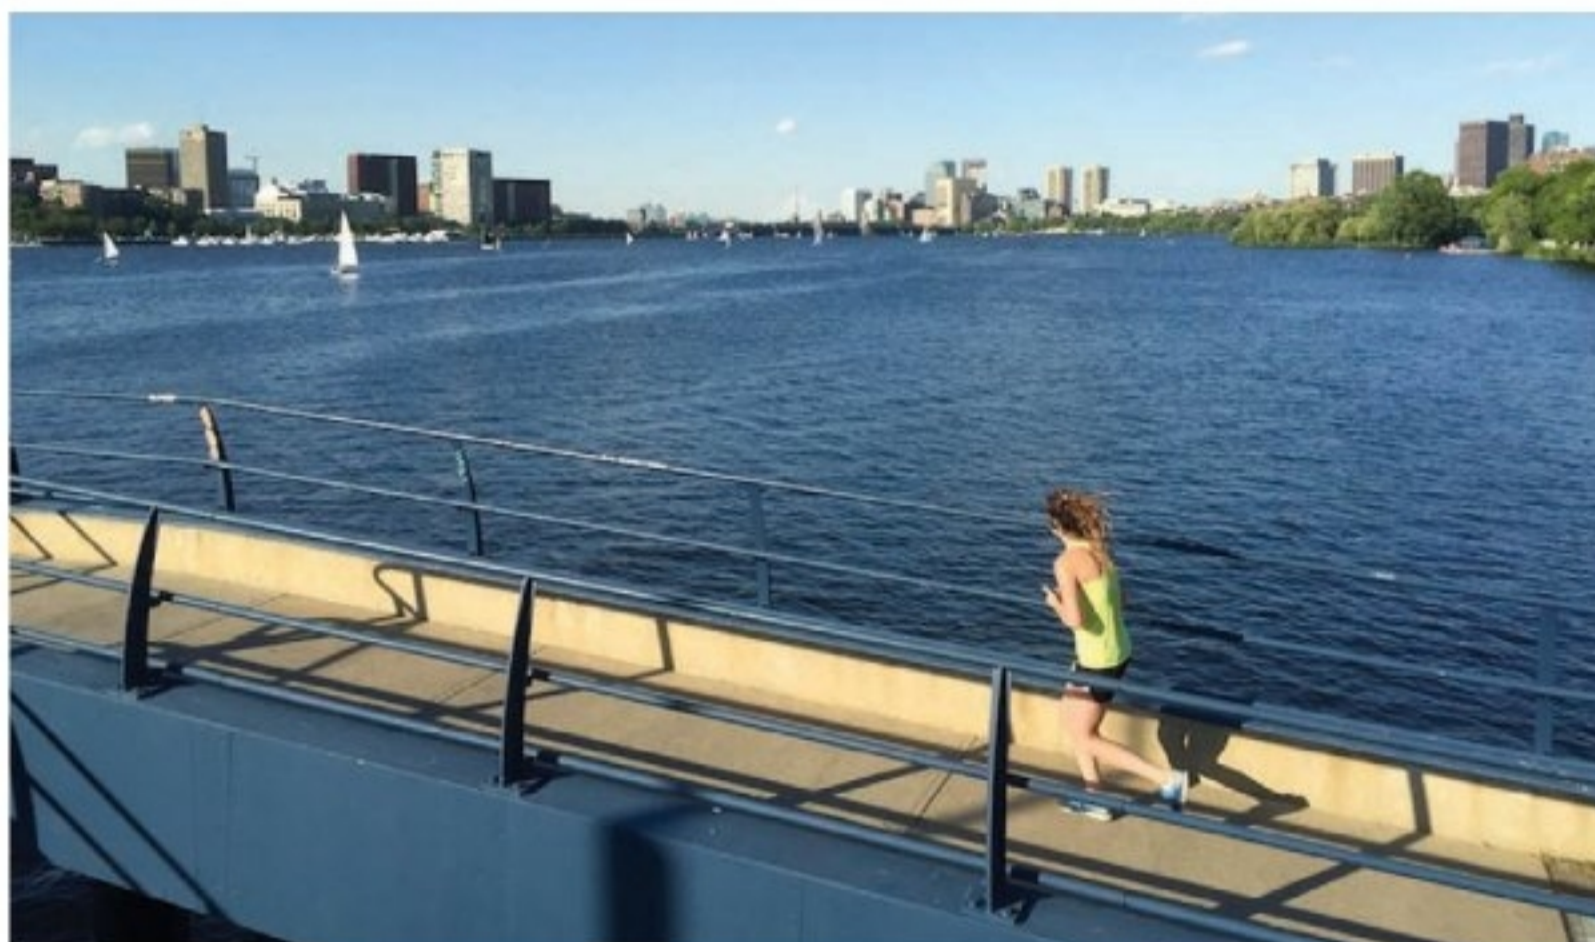

This year, Massachusetts moved up from last year's No. 2 spot thanks to the low percentage of uninsured people here, the low prevalence of obesity and high vaccination rates.

The report analyzed 35 measures to create the rankings, including details on everything from the percentage of adults who smoke, the air-pollution levels and the amount of children living in poverty.

Along with earning the top ranking overall, Massachusetts was No. 1 when it came to how many young children and adolescents received immunizations, having the lowest percentage of the population uninsured at just 2.7 percent, the number of dentists per 100,000 people and the number of health providers per 100,000 people.

The report also noted that the number of adults in Massachusetts who smoke dropped to 13.6 percent of all adults from 18.2 percent over the past five years.

"This report highlights the notable progress that our state is making to improve the health and wellbeing of every individual living in the commonwealth," Gov. Charlie Baker said in a statement. "Massachusetts is proud to have the lowest number of uninsured residents in the country and robust public-health efforts, and our administration will keep working across all levels of government to ensure quality health-care and a safe, healthy environment for our residents to live, work and play."

Massachusetts earned the top spot in a ranking of healthiest states. FLICKR CREATIVE COMMONS/ALLAN LEONARD

Even though Massachusetts is at the top, there was still an increase in drug deaths here, according to the report, showing that the epidemic is affecting even the healthiest states. In the past five years, Massachusetts saw a 69 percent increase in drug deaths, or an addition of eight-plus deaths per 100,000 people.

The nation as a whole also saw an increase in the premature death rate, which measures the risk of dying before reaching age 75, for the third year in a row, and an increase in cardiovascular deaths for the second year in a row.

Behind Massachusetts

Gov. Charlie Baker

came Hawaii, followed by Vermont, Utah and Connecticut in that order for the top five healthiest states.

The least healthy state was Mississippi, which ranked at the 50th spot for the second consecutive year. Louisiana came in 49th, Arkansas in 48th, Alabama in 47th and West Virginia in the 46th spot.

Sen. Gillibrand calls Trump Twitter post 'sexist smear'

Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand fired back at President Donald Trump on Tuesday and said she would not be silenced after he attacked her on Twitter for calling for an investigation into accusations of sexual harassment and misconduct against him.

Trump lambasted Gillibrand on Twitter on Tuesday writing, "Lightweight Senator Kirsten Gillibrand, a total flunky for Chuck Schumer and someone who would come to my office 'begging' for campaign contributions not so long ago (and would do anything for them), is now in the ring fighting against Trump." Schumer is the Senate Democratic leader.

Gillibrand, whose name has been floated as a possible Democratic presidential candidate in 2020, said she would not back down.

"It was a sexist smear attempting to silence my voice, and I will not be silenced on this issue," she told reporters at a news conference.

event later Tuesday when asked what he meant by the tweet.

Other Democratic

lawmakers rallied behind Gillibrand, including Senator Elizabeth Warren, another possible 2020 presidential candidate.

In a tweet directed at Trump, Warren wrote Tuesday, "Are you really trying to bully, intimidate and slut-shame @SenGillibrand? Do you know who you're picking a fight with? Good luck with that, @realDonaldTrump. Nevertheless, #shepersisted."

More than a dozen women have accused Trump, a New York-based real-estate developer and former reality television star, of making unwanted sexual advances against them years before he entered politics. Trump has denied the allegations.

Reuters has not verified the accusations against Trump.

On Monday, Gillibrand called the allegations credible and called on Trump to resign over them.

The attention to sexual-harassment accusations against Trump comes amid a wave of similar accusations against prominent men in Hollywood, the media and politics in recent months. REUTERS

Also serious? They went to a Nick Cave concert in Israel last month. You don’t just go to Israel for a Nick Cave concert with anyone.

Johnson was most recently linked to Jon Hamm which, get it girl. Martin — who is most famous for that one Coldplay song and being married to Gwyneth Paltrow — has dated Jennifer Lawrence and Annabelle Wallis.

Dwayne Johnson has fathered another child

Dwayne Johnson — aka the Rock, aka our future president — is expecting a second child (a girl!) with his longtime girlfriend, Lauren Hashian. Cute!

The “Jumanji” actor took to Instagram, of course, to announce the news with a picture of their daughter, Jasmine Lia.

“Our Jasmine Lia would like to make a big announcement - IT’S A GIRL!” he wrote.

“[Lauren] I am boundlessly grateful for this blessing as this spring we’ll welcome our second baby. Plus, Jazzy is excited to boss around and protect her lil’ sis. And once again, big daddy is completely surrounded by beautiful estrogen and loving, powerful female mana. All girls. One dude. And a boy dog. I wouldn’t have it any other way.”

Johnson, 45, also shares a 16-year-old daughter, Simone Garcia Johnson, with ex-wife Dany Garcia.

Johnson and Hashian are just another brave, rich couple who have tasked themselves with bringing another child into our increasingly tumultuous world. I commend their gumption.

Gwen Stefani’s sweet desperation

Gwen Stefani and Blake Shelton are a couple who are seemingly desperate to prove that their affection for each other is unscripted and not part of an airtight PR contract. Today, Stefani would like to convince you that the two “Don’t Speak,” just like the No Doubt song. It is an unconvincing effort.

The 48-year-old opened up about her relationship with the 41-year-old country star — who, for some reason, was named People’s Sexiest Man Alive even though Kirk Douglas is still alive and literally just turned 101 — and she says that their life together is just like a musical.

“We’re like we’re in a musical constantly and we just sing,” Stefani told Giada de Laurentiis on Williams Sonoma’s Facebook Live. “We actually don’t talk to each other, we just sing, like a musical, and everything we sing is, like, ‘I love you.’ Like it’s pretty much the whole time like how great we are.”

Hmm, I don’t know. This relationship feels like fiction, but so does the whole world right now. So, um, good luck to these two?

These two thirst-bots still appear to be parched.

10 Xmas tree alternatives for Yuletide rebels

home

Christmas trees; who needs 'em? Whomever you blame for the arbitrary tradition of propping up dead trees in our homes, like the deranged plant version of "Weekend at Bernie's" — was it the Pagans? Christians? Germans? Vikings? — as adults, there's really no need to carry on the environmentally destructive pastime. Behold, 10 Christmas tree alternatives that will get you out of your holiday rut and give you a new reason for the season. KATE MOONEY

PATS AT BEST AFTER THEY'VE BEEN HUMBLLED

OPINION

Matt Burke is the Executive Sports Editor and a columnist at Metro US.

Follow him on Twitter @burke_metro

The references that Bill Belichick was making in practice to his team were probably getting quite stale in the past few weeks.

"Hey Gilmore, remember when you got torched on that play against Carolina two months ago?"

"Hey Malcolm, remember Alex Smith shredding you a few days after Labor Day?"

"Hey Brady, remember when Jimmy G made you look like a poor man's Trevor Siemian in that drill in practice three months ago?"

But now, after the Pats got humbled, Belichick has a fresh angle to work with.

All of the mistakes the Patriots displayed in their brutal 27-20 loss to the Dolphins Monday night — and there would be dozens and dozens of them — should actually serve the Pats well for the rest of the regular season and through the playoffs. Belichick can now remind every member of his football team about that December stinker in Miami, and he will surely remind every one of them that their poopoo does indeed stink.

It's human nature to read your own press clippings. The Patriots do a tremendous job of hiding their awareness to the local and national narrative, but no doubt — they know all about it.

Last week at this time the Pats were the No. 1 team in every media outlet's weekly NFL Power Rankings, and they were being heralded by most as the clear-cut favorite to win the Super Bowl yet again.

Then, Miami happened ... with Jay "I was retired four months ago" Cutler lighting them up in front of a nationally televised audience.

That is one hell of a way to humble a football team.

Here's the thing about the Pats. Having one ugly outing in November or December typically works out really, really well for them.

In mid-November last season, the Pats suffered a 31-24 home loss on national TV to the Seahawks. They responded the next game by hanging 41 points at Buffalo and that Sunday night loss to Seattle fueled them all the way to the early February Super Bowl against Atlanta.

In the 2014 season, a similar thing occurred when the Pats lost a late November game at Green Bay, 26-20. No doubt, that "L" to Aaron Rodgers and the Packers sent a message to Belichick's team (which had won seven games in a row previously) that they were entirely "beatable."

Of course, that Patriots team went on to win it all, too.

The reverse of this "take your medicine now to feel better later" stuff occurred in 2010 when the Pats won eight straight games to close out the regular season. That run was highlighted by a Monday night game in early December, when the Pats annihilated Rex Ryan's Jets, 45-3.

A few weeks later everyone and their mother predicted the Pats would then blowout those same Jets in the divisional round of the playoffs.

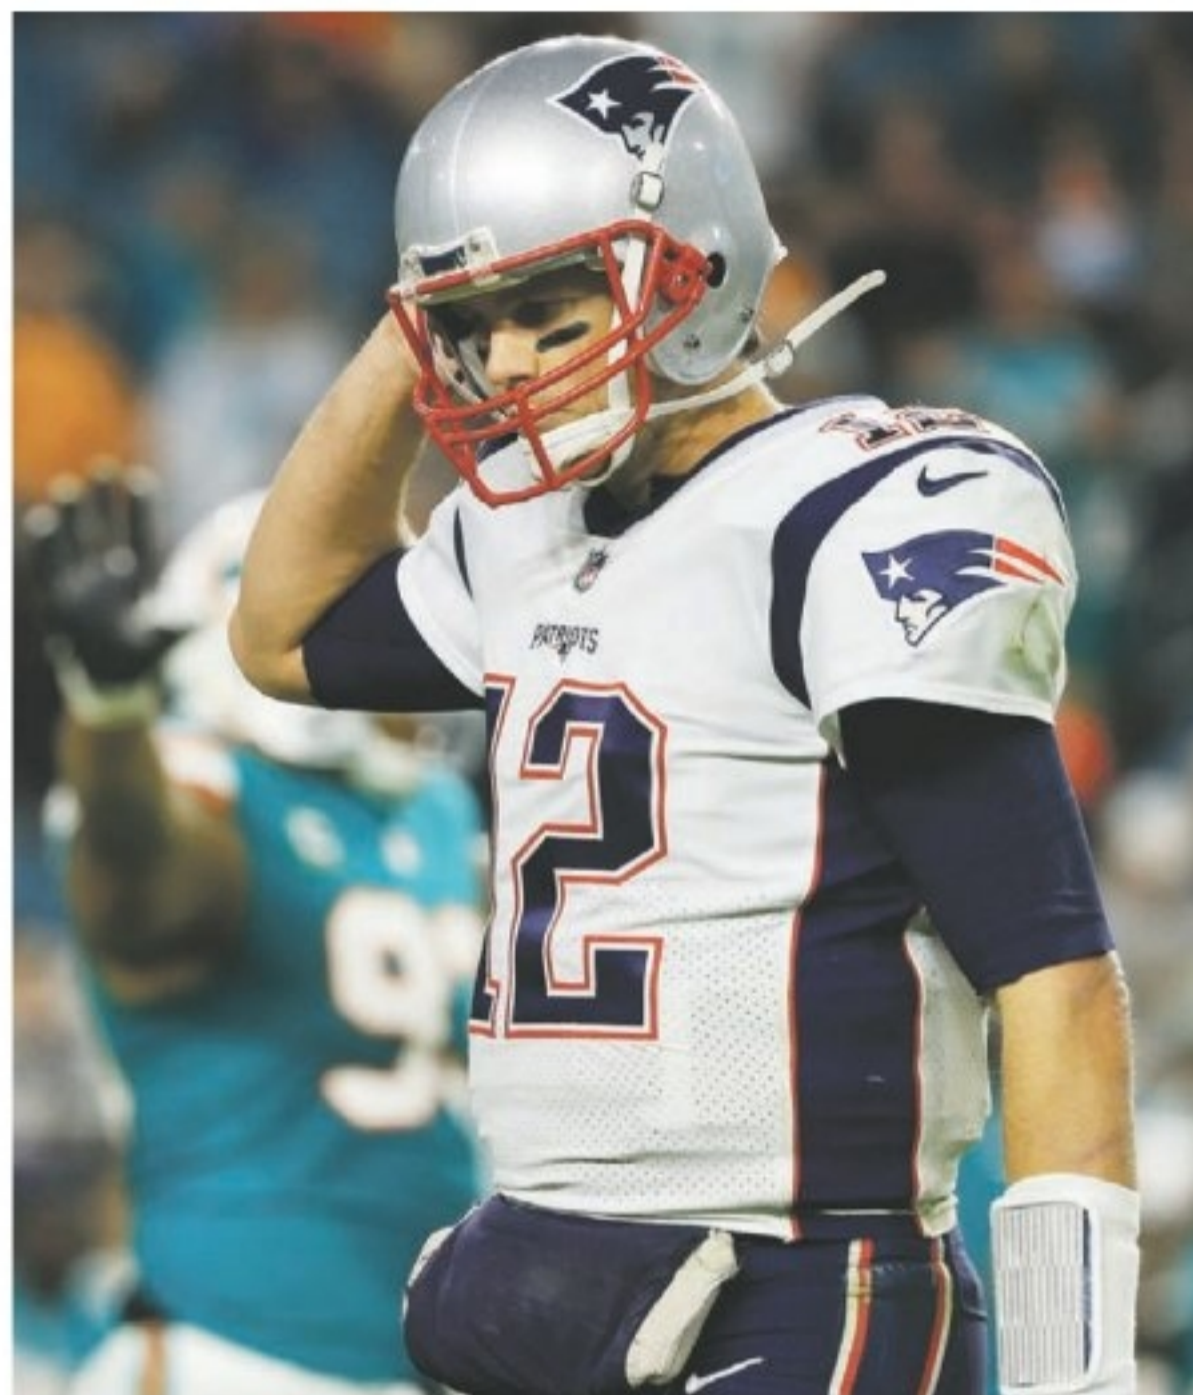

Nope. Not quite. Those Pats, who hadn't been humbled in over two months, suffered a bitter home playoff loss to the rival Jets and were one-and-done in the playoffs.

Early in the Patriots dynasty, the Pats often talked about Belichick serving up hypothetical "humble pie" to all of the players with his sarcastic words and his "ya know, you're really not all that great" approach to motivation.

The phrase "Humble Pie" even became a popular T-shirt worn in the Pats locker room.

Monday night, the Pats were supposed to fly back to Foxboro all wearing brand-new "AFC East Champions" T-shirts.

Those T's will have to wait. Instead, the "Humble Pie" T-shirts are sure to make a comeback, and will be all the rage with the fellas from now until the end of the season.

Tom Brady threw two interceptions in one game for the first time this season on Monday night. GETTY IMAGES

Aries Make a point to get along with your peers or chat with people who can influence your future. Taking business trips or making arrangements to visit friends is favored.

Taurus Partnerships look inviting. Whether it's a personal or professional alliance, your efforts to develop opportunity and bolster your future look promising.

Gemini Someone will tempt you by using emotional tactics or making unexpected, too-good-to-be-true offers. Be suspicious if something sounds too easy or unrealistic.

Cancer Attending networking events will be in your best interest. If you have your ideas ready to present, you will spark the interest of someone intrigued by what you have to offer.

Leo Tension will mount at home or when dealing with partners if you aren't careful. Look for alternative ways to please the people you love without going broke.

Virgo Taking short trips, shopping for bargains or getting together with friends or relatives will be productive. Your insight will help you overcome a growing problem.

Libra You'll have some great ideas that will be sure to please someone you love. Gather information that will help you make a personal change leading to greater stability.

Scorpio You can get things done quickly if you are secretive. Home improvement projects look promising. A surprise you have for someone should be handled with care.

Sagittarius Get involved in something that is not only fun, but will also bring you in contact with people who can help you head in the direction you want to pursue.

Capricorn Lend a helping hand if it will bring about positive change. Your gesture will make a difference. Channel your emotional energy into something worthwhile.

Aquarius Stick to what you know and do well. Offer help, but don't make promises that will be hard to deliver. Don't be tempted by someone making unreasonable offers.

Pisces Be honest about your likes and dislikes. Don't settle for less when you deserve more. Look for alternative ways to get what you want. EUGENIA LAST
